Hi, Heroes!

You've heard of interactive books, interactive video games, and interactive CD's, right? Well, now dig this! Mighty Marvel, your ever-lovin' House of Ideas, has a brand new interactive contest for you! It's for all Spider-Man fans — and, since just about everybody's a Spidey fan, that means it's for everybody, and since you're undoubtedly a body, that means you!

Since you're familiar with the maniacal minds of our Marvel madmen, you know we'd never have an ordinary contest for you titanic true believers. This one is different and wackier than any you've ever entered! I can't give you all the details 'cause we're still working on them, but I can tell you enough to whet your greedy little appetite. There are only two simple requirements to our great new spectacular Spider-Man Contest...

1) You've gotta be able to write, so that we can read your entry! But since the hell-lord hordes of Marvel are the best-educated readers of all, with the highest IQ's, that's no problem!

2) The second vitally important, virtually indispensable requirement is that you regularly follow the Spider-Man syndicated strip in your local newspaper. You see, since this will be the first interactive contest in the first interactive-age strip of all time, you personally will participate in determining what poor, perplexed Peter Parker will do with his life at a certain point in the story!

That's all I'm allowed to divulge right now. The contest doesn't officially begin till Oct. 19th. If your town doesn't yet have Spidey's daily adventures, you still have time to write to the "Comic Strip Editor" of your paper and tell him, or her, to get with it and run Spidey's amazing adventures in time to give you a chance to win some of our really far-out prizes!

Speaking of prizes, just like we'd never run an ordinary contest, you can bet our prizes too will be wild and weird! So stay tuned, heroes. I'll clue you in to more details in one of my next capricious columns!

Till then, be sure to catch your friendly neighborhood wall-crawler in his worldwide newspaper exploits as soon as possible. When the first of our three fateful coupons appears, we want you to be prepared to dash off a prize-winning response!

Excelsior!

NEWSLINE

ITEM! If you haven't sunk your teeth into MORBIUS lately, you might want to take another bite!

A new creative team of Lisa Trusani and Craig Gilmore comes aboard with issue #25, on sale this month, and they've got a whole new approach to vampire tales! In this issue, we meet a new love interest for Morbius — a beautiful and captivating woman named Lena who is repulsed by Morbius's murderous ways. Lena inspires Morbius to make a fateful decision: he will no longer drink human blood, even though it may mean his own death!

Editor Bobbie Chase described the new approach to Morbius as "a cross between Bright Lights, Big City, After Hours, and the Vampire Lestat!" Lisa said her goal is to make Morbius "a more truly heroic character."

ITEM! This month, we salute Generation Y — the next wave of Marveloids!

The first Marvel baby of the year was delivered on New Year's Day to CONAN editor Richard Ashford and his wife, Carol Baird. The young barbarian is named Grant William, and Richard notes that "with a name like that, he's bound to write comics for a living!" During the birth of Grant, Richard passed out twice — which shows that real life can be even more intense than a super-villain slugfest! Richard promises the baby's first words will be "Make Mine Marvel!"

Eliot R. Brown has his own blueprint for having a baby! Eliot's wife, Arlene Puentes, gave birth to a little son of a gun called Nicholas Robert Puentes Brown on April 25. Eliot, currently hard at work on a parody comic called NOT THE PUNISHER ARMORY, noted that instead of a pacifier, young Nicholas prefers to bite on a bullet!

Next up is the busiest writer in comics, Fabian Nicieza, who, along with his wife Tracey Lee, became the proud parents of a little Night Thrasher of their own, little Madison Lee, on April 27. Fabe, who claims he didn't know he was naming his daughter after a mermaid, promised that Madison "will be a member of the New Warriors in a few months!" He also added, "No way will I ever let Speedball date her!"

Congratulations to all the newborns and their proud parents!

HYPE BOX

"While I live, terror does!" Thus speaks the gun-toting Solo, who stars in his first limited series beginning this week, compliments of Eric Fein and Ron Randall. According to writer Eric, "Solo goes against A.R.E.S. — a terrorist organization of people he used to know! The main villain is called Deathstorm!" Spider-Man appears, too — Eric noted that "we will finally see Spider-Man take down a violent vigilante!" Eric promises that SOLO will have "tons of action" in the splendid Spider-Man tradition, we'll bet!
